

Group 1 - Notes

Felipe Fronchetti - Luiz Susin

We met after tagging until the first checkpoint, where we've compared our taggings and calculated the agreement, showing us that our level was on 55%.

Our major problem on achieving the agreement level in this checkpoint was that Susin would tag many decorations - even those who weren't needed - while Felipe would tag less items like that. We've also noticed that a few items weren't on the predefined classes, such as Television, Headphone Holder, Wrist Pad and Ambient Lights.

However, we've also had disagreements on what a gaming or ergonomic peripheral (Mouse/Keyboard/Mousepad) was, what an external subwoofer was and if a laptop holder would also be considered a laptop stand. After talking for a while, we agreed that:

1. A Gaming Mouse or Keyboard would be the one with RGB or from famous gaming brands (such as Razer, Corsair, Logitech Gaming etc);
2. A Gaming Mousepad would be the one which is apparently larger than 10 inches and/or from famous brands (such as the ones aforementioned);
3. An External Subwoofer would be a sound box with both speaker and tweeter;
4. A laptop holder (usually Macbook holder) would also be considered a Laptop Stand;
5. An Ergonomic Mouse or Keyboard would be those who have a different design from the generic ones. The mouse would have a bigger size than the generic ones and some kind of thumb holder. The keyboard must be in a wavy or splitted way;
6. We would only consider Pictures who are family-related.

After talking and agreeing on that, we've tagged until the second checkpoint, where we've had a 73% agreement level. Since we've matched the threshold, we splitted the rest of the images between the two of us.
